

Short Bio:

Marcin Kowalczyk (a.k.a. Maskow)

Born 7 March 1992, Poland

Bored to death by educational system, learned how to solve rubik's cubes blindfolded in early 2011, at the time when he was supposed to learn for the final exams in high school. Discovered memory sports shortly after, and sad that they are not as big as one would expect, dedicated himself to blindfold cubing, which is basically a memory sport, and beat 14 world records in years 2012-2015. Finalist of Polish Got Talent, participant in many other TV shows (e.g. The Brain) and documentaries about people with "extraordinary" abilities. Currently mainly a memory trainer, with years of experience working on stage as an artist, and a volunteer always happy to spread the idea of memory techniques and memory sports at schools, for free, whenever somebody is willing to listen.